Notes for James Cameron:

The 1901 census has James and Satiria Cameron living in the household of Charles Cameron (1860).

About the legal proceedings: My great-grandfather, James Cameron, was murdered in the basement of his son Howard's farmhouse where my Dad was also living, being 4 years old at the time. It is believed James was killed for the payroll he was carrying for his workers. An itinerant was accused and jailed. According to my Dad, some thought it was a member of the larger family that did it. So, as not to bring shame to the family, the other fellow was picked up. My Dad's "evidence" for this was that they sent the fellow unaccompanied to the river in the morning telling him to wash up. He apparently was very reluctant to go, wondering what was up, but eventually went and was never seen again. A tidy way to have an accused but not actually prosecute him.

Ethel Cameron (Campeau) b-1924 remembers that Margaret Cameron (b1890) was on a train out east and noticed a gentleman (Donald Abernathy Cameron b-1894 d-1967) who looked like they could be related. They were talking and comparing information and found they were first cousins. Donald continued to correspond and came to visit with Catherine Cameron (Hentges) in about 1955, and continued to correspond with Catherine until 1964. My family and I (Ronald Cameron b-1947) made a trip to New Brunswick in 1995 and visited with John Douglas Cameron (b-1917 d-2002) and family and as soon as I walked into the front room of there house (witch was right next to Donald's old house) (one of John's children lives in the house) they gasped and said I was the spitting image of Donald Cameron.
